Best Practices

Dry hands before putting the gloves on. Before usage, inspect the gloves for any defect or imperfections. Use at least 1 pair of gloves per patient and procedure. Do not let chemical substances get under the gloves through the cuff. If a chemical substance reaches the skin, wash it away immediately with soap and water. If the gloves get punctured, torn or broken during use, take them off and put on new gloves. Protect against any sharp tools. The gloves are not intended for welding, electric shock protection, ionizing radiation or from the effect of hot or cold objects.

The chemical penetration resistance has been assessed under laboratory conditions from samples taken from the palm only (except in case where glove is equal to or over 400 mm – where the cuff is tested also) and relates only to the chemical tested and to the tested specimen. It can be different if the chemical is used in a mixture.
